

The China Business Review

September-October 1988 $15

An aerial photograph of a city street, likely in Shanghai, China. The street is wide and multi-laned, with several vehicles including buses and cars. On the left side, there are grand, historic buildings with classical architectural features like domes and columns. In the background, a prominent clock tower with a spire stands out against the sky. The overall scene depicts a blend of modern urban infrastructure and historical architecture.

Foreign Investment in China

DISCOVER IN CHINESE.

Now America's largest science magazine speaks the language of Chinese decision-makers.

© 1983 Time Inc.

中国科学普及出版社
美国时代股份有限公司《发现》杂志社

The Chinese DISCOVER is the first of its kind—the first foreign consumer magazine to be translated into Chinese and sold at nationwide retail outlets.

It's printed in four-color, on better paper than other Chinese magazines, with a bigger page. The price—twice that of other Chinese magazines. The initial circulation—20,000 guaranteed.

Here's a unique opportunity to advertise to an elite Chinese audience. A black-and-white page costs $2,500; four-color is $4,000.

To find out more about the Chinese DISCOVER, contact Tim Leedy in New York at (212) 841-4967; Ron Keown in Chicago at (312) 329-6392; Bob Bagno in Detroit at (313) 875-1212; or Cliff Allman in Los Angeles at (213) 385-8151.

Start talking the language of Chinese decision-makers—in DISCOVER.

DISCOVER
America's science magazine